

AIRTV RELEASES LATEST SOFTWARE UPDATE IN TIME FOR NCAA TOURNAMENT

ENGLEWOOD, March 15, 2017 –Today we've launched our second-generation software for AirTV Player, which enhances the integration of local over-the-air (OTA) channels with Sling's lineup of channels. Just in time for college basketball craziness, users have access to games on their local CBS station, alongside games on TNT, TBS and TruTV available with a Sling subscription. An AirTV Adapter and an OTA antenna are required to access local channels and are sold separately.

"We launched AirTV Player at CES with a great combo: the best of OTT and OTA on one device," said Mitch Weinraub, director of product development for AirTV. "We're making that integration even tighter with OTA, Netflix and Sling content, side-by-side, just one push of a button away."

All AirTV Players will automatically get the software update that adds the Local Channels ribbon to the "My TV" screen of Sling and in the Guide, giving more direct access to local channels. The Local Channels ribbon is in addition to the existing Netflix ribbon that displays a Netflix member's content.

Tip-Off Tips

Add OTA to "My Channels"

Some cities may have more than 50 channels available over the air. That's a lot of free entertainment, but it's also a lot of channels to sort through. For even easier access to local channels, users can create their own favorite channels list by adding the local channels they watch the most to "My Channels" in Sling. How to Update

AirTV Players will automatically be updated with the latest software when they are in Standby mode. For users wishing to initiate the update, they can do so manually.
