

Sling TV Fact Sheet

ABOUT SLING TV

As America's number one live TV streaming service (based on the number of subscribers publicly reported as of May 3, 2019), Sling TV is an over-the-top (OTT) content platform that delivers live TV and on-demand entertainment instantly to a variety of smart televisions, tablets, game consoles, computers, smartphones, virtual reality headsets and streaming devices. Sling TV is the pioneer of live, OTT multichannel TV services that you can take anywhere, helping form and define the rapidly growing OTT/streaming industry. Offering more choice and control than any other OTT television service, Sling TV lets you pick your personal channel lineup, starting with a base service and adding only the genre-based Extras, premium channels and à la carte channels you want. With no long-term contracts, rental equipment or hidden fees, Sling TV is an advanced and affordable alternative to watch your favorite cable television programming at home or on the go.

Sling TV debuted at the 2015 Consumer Electronics Show (CES) as a virtual multichannel video programming distributor (vMVPD)—allowing today's most popular channels to be viewed through the Sling TV app starting at $25 per month with the flexibility to personalize programming based on different genres. Sling TV offers two domestic services, Sling Orange and Sling Blue, as well as Spanish-language and Sling International standalone services. Ultimately, Sling TV provides more than 680 channels in 24 languages across multiple devices to millions of U.S. households.

Sling TV Industry Leadership Highlights

- First live OTT multichannel TV streaming service, establishing an entirely new market of "personalized" live TV
